Animals in the heat

The wildlife at Cleland is well adapted to summer conditions in the Mount Lofty Ranges. By finding the coolest, shadiest position within their enclosure, kangaroos, wombats, Tasmanian Devils, bandicoots and wallabies can avoid the worst of the day's heat by lying quietly and breathing slowly. Please be aware of the animals' needs when approaching them on a hot day.

Koalas are more inactive than normal on hot days and may climb down to the base of their tree, or perch to take advantage of the coolness of the ground. If the temperature exceeds 35 degrees within the wildlife park, the handling of Koalas does not occur, due to the level of discomfort for the animals. Alternative sessions with the Koala staff are available on these days, and further information may be obtained from the ticket staff on entry to the park.

BALEEN WHALES

BALEEN STATS OR FILTERS GROW DOWN FROM THE JAW. FRINGED Moustache, COMbing THE TINY PLANKTON. ETC. EVEN SMALL FISH FROM THE WATER PASSING THROUGH WHALE OPENS ITS MOUTH. ITS TONGUE SQUEEZES WATER BETWEEN AND TRAPPED FOOD IS SWALLOWED.

FOREGOYS BECAME PEPPERS, WHOLEFOYS REMAIN AS INTER VESTIGES. BARK LINGERS AS BRISTLES, BUT THEY HAVE A LAYER OF BLUBBER WHICH PROTECTS THEM IN THE POLAR WHERE THEIR FOOD IS MOST PLENTIFUL, MIGRATING TO WARM REGIONS TO CALVE, FEEDING THEIR YOUNG ON RICH MILK.

AGE OF OLD TOM

Local legend put his age between 50 and 90 years. However a slice from his tooth shows 25 additional concentric layers. These are approximately 10 layers groups. Based on this count "OLD TOM" may have been 33 years old.
